

How to Coach Teachers to Teach Almost Anything
May 29-31, 2018
MacKay Building, Library Commons, Pierre, SD
Facilitator: Jackson Consulting

The SD Department of Education is extending this invitation to District Instructional Coaches, Literacy Coaches, and Administrators

If you answer yes to any of the questions below and are a currently a district instructional coach, literacy coach, or administrator, then the How to Coach Teachers sessions might be exactly what you are looking for in professional development for your work with coaches and educators.

Step 1:

Do you need to forgive yourself for:

- Sporadic coaching
- Not giving feedback on your walk-throughs
- Apologizing for being a coach with tough teachers
- Feeling like "who am I to be giving feedback to teachers?"
- Avoiding hard-to-coach teachers and coaching only the kind ones
- Putting small tasks above coaching
- Not having a sense of structure as you coach

Step 2:

Are you a coach or principal who is:

- Ready to tackle the lack-of-time issues with coaching
- In need of a tailored coaching plan for each teacher
- Trying to bring focus to what and how you coach teachers
- Looking for guidance on what exactly is the most important stuff to coach
- Feeling pressure to give feedback but are intimidated by delivering tough messages
- Excited about learning new ways to take notes that translate into a super focused debriefing
- Curious about how to talk to your principal about coaching without feeling like you're tattling on teachers

- There is no registration fee for participants.
- Registration can be completed by clicking this link: Go Sign Me Up
- Registration requires an Access Code: Coach2018
- All costs for textbooks and travel will be at personal or district expense.

Two texts are REQUIRED for this training and will be utilized throughout the three-day sessions. Districts or coaches are responsible for the purchasing of their own copies of these books. No books will be available for purchase upon arrival at the session.
